MODULE 1 — Introduction to Archetypes

1.1 Archetypes: Practical Tools, Not Labels

Archetypes are not labels.

They are not boxes to trap your identity.

They are living energies.

Natural patterns of behavior, desire, and action that exist within each of us.

Each archetype represents a way of feeling the world, acting, loving, and facing life.

Knowing your archetype doesn't define you.

It helps you remember who you truly are, beneath social masks, expectations, and fears.

Archetypes don't close you in.

They open the door to your true nature.

1.2 Archetypes as Natural Energy

Every human being is born with a unique predisposition — a natural way to:

- seek safety
- create beauty
- build power
- help others
- explore new horizons
- live love
- lead or follow

Archetypes are like inner currents: invisible, yet powerful.

When you live in coherence with your archetypal energy:

- You feel in flow, natural, quietly strong
- You make nourishing decisions
- You attract people and situations aligned with who you truly are

When you live against your archetype:

- You feel drained and conflicted
- You work hard for things that don't give energy back
- Your life works outwardly, but dims you inside

1.3 Why Knowing Your Archetype Changes Your Life

Knowing your archetype allows you to:

- Choose work, places, and relationships that truly respect you
- Simplify life by letting go of what isn't yours
- Build mental strength based on who you are, not who you “should” be
- Transform shadow into conscious resources

True strength is born when you stop fighting yourself and start collaborating with who you are.

Practical Exercise — “First Contact with Your Archetype”

Reflect on:

- When do I feel most alive?
- When do I feel most myself, without effort?
- What gives me natural energy, even without external reward?

Write freely.

These answers are precious clues to your dominant archetype.

MODULE 2 — Discover Your Dominant Archetype

2.1 The Main Archetypal Families

Archetypes are not infinite.

They can be grouped into major energetic families — each one with its own “style” of living, choosing, and facing life.

Explorer

- Love for freedom, travel, direct experience
- Dislikes routine and feeling trapped

Creator

- Energy of building, inventing, imagining
- Always turning ideas into reality

Ruler

- Desire for order, leadership, and creating stability for self and others
- Seeks structure and positive control

Caregiver

- Calling to protect, support, and nurture
- Often puts others' well-being before their own

Hero

- Energy of action and overcoming obstacles
- Grows through challenge and achievement

ARCHETYPES LIFESTYLE & MINDSET

Rebel

- Challenges rules and breaks systems that feel unfair
- Seeks authenticity even if it disrupts stability

Lover

- Lives for connection, beauty, intimacy
- Values emotional presence and human warmth

Sage

- Seeks truth, knowledge, and deeper meaning
- Loves studying, reflecting, teaching

Magician

- Transforms reality through vision and intuition
- Believes in radical, positive change

Note: We all carry multiple archetypes, but usually one (sometimes two) is dominant — the core energy that drives you.

2.2 Mini Practical Test: Identify Your Dominant Archetype

Answer freely:

1. When do you feel most alive and energized — what are you doing?
2. If nobody judged you, what kind of life would you choose?
3. If you could solve one problem in the world, what would it be and how would you act?
4. What brings you the deepest sense of fulfillment: creating, protecting, knowing, liberating, loving, winning, leading?

Now observe the main theme:

- Freedom → Explorer
- Creation → Creator
- Order/Leadership → Ruler
- Care → Caregiver
- Challenge/Conquest → Hero
- Rebellion/Change → Rebel
- Love/Beauty → Lover
- Truth/Knowledge → Sage
- Deep transformation → Magician

This is a first clue. Feel it with your heart — not only with your mind.

2.3 Essence vs Mask

Essence

Your natural, spontaneous archetype — the one that emerges without forcing.

In Essence:

- You feel calm strength
- You act with less effort and feel fully yourself

Mask

The archetype you learned to wear to please, survive, or protect yourself.

In Mask:

- You get tired faster
- Something feels “not mine,” even if it works outwardly

Knowing your Essence archetype is the beginning of a life built on who you are, not on who you were asked to be.

- Where do I feel most true?
- Where do I feel forced or drained?

Write:

- 3 situations where you acted from Essence and felt good

MODULE 3 — Living According to Your Archetype

3.1 Aligning Choices, Work, Places, and Relationships

Knowing your archetype isn't only for self-understanding.
It's for building a life that looks like you.

When choices align with your natural energy:

- effort decreases
- energy increases
- happiness becomes a natural side effect

Work

- Explorer → dynamic work, movement, travel, variety
- Creator → art, innovation, design, writing, music, creative projects
- Ruler → leadership, organization, managing teams or systems
- Caregiver → education, health, support roles, counseling
- Hero → sport, entrepreneurship, coaching, challenging missions
- Rebel → social innovation, disruptive startups, advocacy
- Lover → aesthetics, relationships, fashion, well-being, art
- Sage → teaching, consulting, research, strategy
- Magician → transformational coaching, psychology, personal development

WHO ARE YOU?

Places to Live

- Explorer → wild nature, islands, frequent movement
- Creator → creative cities, artistic communities, alternative coworking spaces
- Ruler → stable, organized cities with solid infrastructure
- Caregiver → welcoming communities, family-centered environments
- Hero → dynamic cities, competitive environments
- Rebel → places in transformation, innovative projects
- Lover → romantic, harmonious places, nature + beauty
- Sage → quiet places, historical or cultural cities
- Magician → mystical/natural environments, retreat-style locations

Relationships

Not every relationship nourishes your archetype.

Surround yourself with people who respect and encourage your nature — not people who try to reshape it.

What each archetype needs to bloom in relationships:

- Explorer → freedom and support for discovery
- Creator → appreciation for creativity without rigid judgment
- Ruler → respect for order and autonomy, not constant power struggles
- Caregiver → recognition of sensitivity without taking advantage
- Hero → support for growth and challenge, not ridicule of ambition
- Rebel → love for authenticity even when it breaks patterns
- Lover → emotional intimacy and beauty, with comfort around vulnerability
- Sage → respect for depth and reflection, not pressure into superficiality
- Magician → belief in transformation, without cynicism or mental limitation

✨ The right relationship doesn't ask you to abandon your essence. It helps you live it more fully.

3.2 Common Mistakes: Living Against Your Nature

1. Choosing “safe” lives that aren’t authentic
 - Explorers trapped in office routines
 - Creators stuck in repetitive roles
2. Accepting relationships that require you to change who you are
 - Rebels forced to “normalize”
 - Lovers forced into emotionally cold environments
3. Following success models that don’t belong to you
 - Not everyone needs to become a manager, influencer, or CEO.

True fulfillment is not becoming something.
It’s becoming who you already were.

3.3 Practical Examples of Archetypal Life

Explorer → Digital nomad life, changing country every 6 months

Creator → Launch a handmade brand or write a book

Ruler → Build a small family business that grows over time

Lover → Work on projects that cultivate beauty, well-being, community

Magician → Create transformational paths for others

Practical Exercise — “Design an Archetypal Choice”

- Think of a decision you need to make (big or small)
- Ask: which option honors my archetype the most?
- Write a simple plan to live that choice (even one small first step)

MODULE 4 — Mindset & Archetypes: Building an Ally Mind

4.1 How Your Archetype Shapes How You Face Change

The way you think, react, and grow is deeply influenced by your dominant archetype.

Examples:

- Explorer → sees challenges as adventure, may escape when feeling trapped
- Creator → solves through creativity, may freeze under rigidity
- Ruler → restores order, may overload without delegation
- Caregiver → supports others, may forget self-care
- Hero → fights and wins, may burn out without rest
- Rebel → breaks patterns, may destroy what already works
- Lover → seeks emotional support, may lose clarity when feeling abandoned
- Sage → analyzes calmly, may fall into overthinking paralysis
- Magician → sees inevitable transformation, may isolate too much inwardly

Each archetype has a superpower — and a temptation.
Knowing both amplifies strength and protects from traps.

4.2 Practical Strategies to Build Strength While Respecting Who You Are

- Explorer: Courage includes leaving — and staying where your heart calls you
- Creator: When stuck, allow imperfect flow; movement brings clarity
- Ruler: True power builds structures that work without constant control
- Caregiver: Self-care is the first real act of love
- Hero: Rest and vulnerability are part of real strength
- Rebel: Not every system needs destruction — some need refinement
- Lover: Strength includes loving yourself with the same intensity
- Sage: Don't wait to know everything; wisdom grows through action
- Magician: Transformation begins within — one day at a time

4.3 Goals & Routines Aligned With True Energy

There is no universal routine.

Each archetype needs rhythms that match its nature.

Examples:

- Explorer → flexible routines, room for movement and change
- Creator → daily space for inspiration and creation
- Ruler → clear planning + space to delegate and adjust
- Caregiver → daily self-time before giving to others
- Hero → challenging goals + real recovery time
- Rebel → “open” routines, freedom to change method
- Lover → quality time for relationships and emotional presence
- Sage → study/reflection sessions + practical synthesis
- Magician → time for visualization and inner work

Practical Exercise — “Build Your Archetypal Mindset”

- Write your dominant archetype
- Write:
 - your strength in challenges
 - your typical trap
- Create a guiding phrase that keeps you aligned in hard moments

Example:

“As an Explorer, my strength is seeing opportunity everywhere.

My trap is leaving too early.

My guiding phrase: ‘The real adventure is staying where my heart vibrates.’”

MODULE 5 — Evolution: Integrating Shadow, Light, and Secondary Archetypes

5.1 Every Archetype Has Light... and Shadow

- Light is the pure, constructive expression of the archetypal energy
- Shadow is the excess, distortion, or fear linked to the same energy

Complete Table — Light & Shadow

- Explorer
 - Light: freedom, curiosity, openness
 - Shadow: avoiding responsibility, chronic restlessness
- Creator
 - Light: creativity, innovation, transformation
 - Shadow: perfectionism, fear of judgment, procrastination
- Ruler
 - Light: stability, leadership, vision
 - Shadow: excessive control, rigidity, arrogance
- Caregiver
 - Light: care, compassion, devotion
 - Shadow: victim identity, self-erasure, emotional dependency
- Hero
 - Light: courage, resilience, determination
 - Shadow: blind aggression, burnout, obsession with success

 - Shadow: unnecessary destruction, anger, alienation
- Lover
 - Light: emotional connection, love, beauty
 - Shadow: emotional dependency, jealousy, insecurity
- Sage
 - Light: wisdom, mental clarity, big-picture vision
 - Shadow: cold detachment, analysis paralysis, cynicism
- Magician
 - Light: intuition, transformation, positive manifestation
 - Shadow: illusion, manipulation, escaping reality

✨ Integrating the shadow means recognizing your energy without fighting it, and transforming it into conscious strength.

ARCHETYPES LIFESTYLE & MINDSET

5.2 Secondary Archetypes: Living Complexity in Harmony

You are not made of only one archetype.

- The dominant archetype is your Essence — the central force
- Secondary archetypes activate depending on roles, phases of life, and specific challenges

How it works:

- each life area may call a different archetype
- each growth phase may strengthen or shift secondary energies

Example:

- Relationships → Lover, Caregiver, Explorer
- Work → Creator, Ruler, Hero
- Personal challenges → Hero, Rebel, Magician
- Inner growth → Sage, Magician, Creator

You are not locked into one pattern.

You can integrate, choose, harmonize.

Key points:

- Dominant = identity and grounding
- Secondary = flexibility and tools
- Risk = living too long in a secondary archetype that goes against your Essence

5.3 Harmonizing Dominant and Secondary Archetypes

- Awareness → notice which archetypes are active in different contexts
- Acceptance → use secondary archetypes as allies, not enemies
- Grounding → return regularly to your dominant archetype to restore energy and clarity

Practical Exercise — “Your Archetypal Map”

1. Write:
 - your dominant archetype
 - 2–3 secondary archetypes active in your life
 - 1.
 - 2.
 - 3.
2. For each one:
 - where does it help you?

 - where can it pull you away from your truth?
 - 1
 - 2
 - 3

3. Write one personal guiding sentence as synthesis.

Example:

“I am an Explorer (dominant), a Creator at work, and a Sage in personal growth.

I use my free spirit to innovate and learn, while returning to my need to discover life with fresh eyes.”

Course Closing

Archetypal awareness means living in harmony between who you truly are and life's possibilities.

- You don't need to erase any part of you
- You become the conductor of your inner orchestra

A free and happy life is not perfection.
It is coherence with who you truly are.

ARCHETYPES LIFESTYLE & MINDSET

Theme: caring for yourself

Practice: one daily act of self-care

Reflection:

- What loving gesture did I give myself today?
- How did it change how I showed up for others?
- Where can I honor myself even more?

Morning line:

“I care for the world by honoring my soul first.”
